REV. MR. POVEY'S

TALK ON PARIS

Before an audience that comfortably filled Trinity M. E. Church, last night, Rev. R. S. Povey gave the third leoture in a course of four based upon his European trip last summer. His subject was Paris, and at the outset, Mr. Povey said that the ideal time for entering Paris was in the evening one would be immediately encirmied by the city's variegated and vivid activity, and by smiling, singing throngs of people. The Rue de Rivoli, the Boulevard of the Madeleine, the Boulevard des Italiens, the Champs Flysies and other avenues were described as their respective characters demanded.

rayses and other avenues were described as their respective characters flemanded.

In speaking of the palace of Versellies, which was described in an interesting manner. Mr. Povey said: "The law of reaction is life finds graphic illustration in the lives of Louis XVI, and his Queen, Marie Antoinette, who, when the infuriated Revolutionary mob appeared in the pourtyard of the palace demanding bread, met them with cold looks, and meeting them with cold looks, they soon got back cold steel."

The final paragraphs of the lecture were as follows: "From the downfall pf Napoleon until the present time, France has been learning. From them until now, Paris has been learning. And Paris needs to learn. Though still proud and prodigal, her vivacious and vigorous life is crowned lonight with a hope more large and more luminous than ever before. O, Paris! gay and still gayer with the passing of the years, there is hope for these. What is thy greatest need tonight? O. Paris, hear the answer—Home and home-life! The lack of these is thy crying shame. The cultivation of them would be thy crowning slory."

Any child showing symptoms of cold or indigestion, particularly when accompanied by sickness at the stomach, should by all means be kept out of school, and additional care should be taken that the child does not come in contact with others in the family. They should be kept isolated until medical attendance has assured that it is not the suspected disease."

By preventative measures the public can greatly help the authorities in stopping a spread of the contagion and without arousing any fear that an epidemic is present, the Health Officer believes that this timely warning should be given.

honor of the birthday of Robert Burns, Scotland's favorite poet will be celebrated in Colonial hall on Friday evening, Jan. 24. Burns was once exclusively a Scottish poet but nowadays what with his songs and poems being taught in schools he is almost as well known among Americans as among Scotsmen. We append the program for the concert which is worthy of more than passing police.

Scotsmen. We append the program for the concert which is worthy of more than passing notices:

William L. Cockburn is perhaps the greatest living baritone and is certainly the finest exponent of Scottish song before the American public toay. The Alexanders are well known and well liked here having appeared in this city on several previous occasions. The humorist John G. Anderson, now of New Tork, formerly of Eigin, Scotland, is also a favorite here being preferred by many to the much lauded Harry Lauder. Nebble Roberts is a very fine contraito and comes here for the first time to win new laurels. The dancers will be sure to please the most fashionable with their grace and agility. The accompanist Elmer S. Joyce is too well known in Bridgeport to need more than passing mention. The piper, John Robertson who will supply the local color in the shape of bagpipe music is a master of the artiand is sure to stir a few old memories in the minds of those who are now perhaps ultra-American. The chairman, John A. Macdougall, the newly elected chief will have an appropriate word of welcome to the crowd that is sure to be there.

Dr. F. L. Day spoke at Barnum school last evening in the free lecture course of the Board of Education on "Feeding the School Children." He counselled regular appetite.
